Mme. Schwimmer and Mrs. Snowden Address Women's Meeting at Belasco.

TO CALL ON PRESIDENT AND SUBMIT THEIR PLAN

Henry Ford Expected to Speak Explaining His Project for Conference of Neutrals.

ference of Neutrals.

A great gathering of women in the interest of peace in Europe took place at the Belasco Theater this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to hear Henry Ford, Mme. Rosika Schwimmer of Hungary and Mrs. Earl Snowden, wife of a member of the British parliament, outline a plan they have devised for a settlement of the struggle on the other side of the ocean.

Mrs. Post Is Chairman.

The meeting, which was presided over by Mrs. Louis Post, wife of the assistant secretary of labor, will continue until a late heur this afternoon, when Mr Ford is to accompany Mme Schwimmer and Mrs. Snowden to the White House, to present to President Wilson a renewed request that he call a conference of neutral nations to try to end the war. Their appointment with the President is for 5:30 o'clock, to the Mrs. Post is for 5:30 o'clock, to hear Henry Ford is to accompany Mme Schwimmer and Mrs. Snowden to the White House, to present to President Wilson a renewed request that he call a conference of neutral nations to try to end the war. Their appointment with the President is for 5:30 o'clock. But, while President Wilson will not stand in the way of any movement, practical or theoretical, official or unofficial, that promises to restore peace in Europe, it is virtually settled today official, that promises to restore peace in Europe, it is virtually settled today that he will not give official sanction to the efforts now in progress, as rep-resented by the committee that is to call upon him this afternoon.

Women Can Wait No Longer.

Mme. Schwimmer, who, with Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, and others affiliated with the Woman's Peace Party, was one of those who attended the International Congress of Women at The Hague last summer

They dare not tell us, when we go back to them again, as we intend to do, either as official delegates to an official necessary of recursions. either as official delegates to an official peace conference of neutral nations or as unofficial delegates to a conference of our own not under governmental auspices, that they have not leading countries of the two great groups which are struggling together two great Germany—and if we can find a basis for agreement for them, the other necessary agreements with the other nations will fellow."

Resolution Is Offered.

The following resolution was presented at the meeting at the Belasco and was expected to be adopted: The envoys sent by the International Congress of Women at The Hague as-certained from the governments of the 'Invitation dealing' belligerent nations of Europe that they would have no objections to the calling of a conference of the neutral nations sidered meddlesome." of the world looking to the possible termination of the war; and

"The women as well as the men of the nations in this war are sufferers from its devastation; therefore,

"We, members of the woman's peace party and others assembled in Washington, urge that the President of the United States, the head of one of the principal neutral countries of the world, call upon the other neutral nations to appoint representatives to assemble in conference for constant mediation without armistice and dedicated to finding a just settlement of this conflict."

No Official Recognition.

But, notwithstanding the hopes of those who back this resolution, it is not believed that any official of the United States government, or any one who can even claim to represent the President, either personally or offi-cially, will go to Europe to take part in any conference of neutral nations to end the war, unless he is informed by European governments that the time has come for such a conference.

time has come for such a conference.

President Wilson is probably in closer touch with the possibilities of peace in Europe than any other living man, his friends maintain. Official and unofficial information reaches him from every part of the world as to conditions abroad. American amhassadors and ministers write him confidentially; crowned heads are understood to do so, and the Pope recently communicated important information to him. He of all men should know, it is pointed out, whether there is the alightest prospect to inaugurate peace alightest prospect to inaugurate peace negotiations abroad. He does not see any-thing in the horescope that promises real cate to him the slightest hope of effective results.

The President does not wish to figure in the world's history as a busybody, making frequent but futile attempts to bring the belligerents together and receiving rebuffs in return, but he is earnestly trying to ascertain the best moment to interpose the powerful influence of the United States, and not until the thinks that moment has arrived will he act.

Mr. Ford, who was reported to have left New York last night for Washington, was unable to get away until this morning and is due at the Belasco meeting before it adjourns this afternoon. Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Snowden are to accompany him. Mme. Schwimmer arrived this morning. The latter, being a Hungarian, is understood to be able to voice the wishes of the woman of the Teutonic nations, and Mrs. Mr. Ford, who was reported to have women at The Hague last summer, said before going to the White House that she and Mrs. Snowden will tell the President that the women of the world cannot wait any longer for a prospect of peace.

"We shall urge the President," she said, "to call a conference of neutral nations, to try to end the war, and if he should feel that it is not possible for him to take the initiative, then we will ask him to say to us that delegates to be appointed by the United States government will participate in such a conference if some other nation calls one.

LONDON, November 26.-Greek affairs having emerged from the uncertainty which for some time has been a potential menace to the allied campaign in the Balkans, Rumania's problem now commands chief attention in Europe. Although Rumania is beset with difficulties somewhat similar to those which caused Greece to hesitate, she is not involved in the same political turmoil and her situation is expected to mature more rapidly.

Whatever German efforts have been made in Rumania, it is believed here that they have been largely offset by the presence of large Russian forces close to the frontier and the now rapidly developing Russian preparations, with Odessa as a base, from which no inference is possible than her immediate entrance into
